Residents against Trump seek town hall meeting

Group gathers at U.S. Rep. Hultgren's office, where they are told 'some form' of forum will be scheduled

Campton Hills Police Chief Daniel Hoffman addresses concerns of some members of a group Tuesday outside the office of U.S. Rep. Randy Hultgren, R-Plano. The Campton Hills police station is across the street from the congressman's office. (Linda Girardi/Beacon-News)

By Linda Girardi The Beacon-News

After dozens of residents called for a town hall meeting on President Donald Trump's executive orders and Cabinet choices, U.S. Rep. Randy Hultgren's office staff said "some form" of forum will be put together to give residents a chance to share their views.

About 65 people attempted to file into Hultgren's second floor suite in the Fox Mill Professional Office Center in Campton Hills Tuesday to speak with staff members about a range of issues and to request a public meeting with the Plano Republican.

They said they were told that since the office is small, two people would be allowed inside to talk with a staff member.

The group was met outside by Campton Hills Police Chief Daniel Hoffman, who assured them he wasn't there to discourage them.

Hoffman told them he was being "proactive" to ensure they had a "peaceful assembly" and there was no disruption to the public, such as if they crowded into a stairwell or blocked the entrance of the privately owned building.

"We want the congressman to know that his constituents care about what decisions he is making. If he doesn't see that there are many of us, he may not take it seriously. We are serious," St. Charles resident Miki Powell told the police chief.

Hoffman said if they were going to protest that it had to be on the public sidewalk.

Hoffman said Hultgren's office has received a couple of "harassing" phone calls, and there was an incident when a man pounded on the glass door of the congressman's office and "startled" an intern.

The group did make its way up the stairwell where they were met by Hultgren's Deputy Chief of Staff Beth Goncher. Goncher said they want to hear from constituents. However, for security reasons, they could not be permitted in the office all at once.

Goncher said they are in the process of scheduling "some form" of a town hall meeting, although she did not have any details.

"It is a priority (for the congressman). He does want to hear from you," Goncher said.

Hultgren represents the 14th District, which includes parts of Aurora, Naperville and Elgin and many other towns in the area.

One woman exclaimed that she wants members of Congress to "stop telling us to be quiet and stop telling the media to be quiet."

Jeanne Scown of Geneva told the group to "clear out" and respect the staff member's directive.

Hoffman told the crowd to file out and not disrupt the businesses in the building.

Two people from the group, William Scown of Geneva and Howard Miller of Batavia, were able to go in and had about 10 minutes to speak with a staff member.

Scown said that Trump "appears to have no understanding of his office" and "acts as if he is unconstrained by law or duty."

"We want to know that Mr. Hultgren will protect the Constitution, protect our rights and protect our interests from an out-of-control president," Scown said.

On Monday, Hultgren issued a statement that said that Trump's executive order on immigration was "overly broad and its interpretation has been inconsistent and confused."

"This has led to unintended consequences, like the barring of legal, permanent residents and the rejection of Syrian Christians at the airport, a religious minority that was supposed to be protected by the executive order," he said.

Scown said he was aware of Hultgren's statement on Trump's executive order.

"I feel it was an attempt to minimize what is going on," Scown said. "The implication was that this was an implementation issue. This is a basic Constitutional violation of First Amendment rights of U.S. citizens."

He said while the group that went to Hultgren's office Tuesday didn't expect a commitment on a date for a public meeting immediately, they do want a response within a reasonable time frame.

"We want the congressman to reassure us at a town hall meeting that he is putting our interests and the country's interests ahead of the Republican Party," Scown said.

"It does matter to him (Hultgren) what you have to say," Goncher said. "He does want to hear from you. It is a priority for him. It is a matter of identifying what is the best format."

Miller said he was concerned with Trump's adviser Stephen Bannon and several of the president's selections for his cabinet.

"There are lots of concerns that are going unheard here," Scown said after the exchange with Hultgren's staff member. He said staff members for Hultgren were "more accommodating" last week but he understood there was a larger crowd Tuesday.

"The reason we have a larger crowd is that people are frightened. (Trump) appears to have little regard for the Constitution and process of government," he said.
