Dear Bob,

Thank you so very much for all of the time you spent addressing the Boy Scouts explaining your position as a police officer along with sharing your insight on what you see and how you handle various matters from your many years of experience as a police officer.

It is certainly beneficial for young people to be aware of how the community functions and what they need to do to be law abiding and responsible citizens.

Bob, it is especially meaningful to me, a daughter of a policeman, who had served nearly 30 years with the ISP, that you joined us. I want to see young people have the respect that law enforcement deserves and along with this that they realize that the police are also just regular folks with a passion to serve the community.

Most Sincerely,
